The flood of 1997 dramatically altered the landscape of Grand Forks and East Grand Forks. That spring, the Red and Red Lake Rivers reached record high level levels, homes and businesses were inundated with water, and eleven buildings downtown were destroyed by fire. To ensure that Greater Grand Forks would be protected against future flooding, the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers proposed constructing a continuous, permanent flood protection system, including a greenway, along the Red and Red Lake Rivers.

The Greenway features approximately 2,200 acres of year-round outdoor recreation in the heart of Greater Grand Forks. Users can find numerous parks, a campground, two golf courses, four disc golf courses, over 20 miles of multi-purpose trails, shore bank fishing sites, and so much more!

The flood of 1997 by the numbers

Final river level: 54.35'
Number of people evacuated: 56,000
Property inundated with water: 75% in Grand Forks and 95% in East Grand Forks
Number of buildings burned in downtown Grand Forks: 11
